TRANSPLANT IT.

Somewhere in the solitude of forest or the lareness of a lonely hillside there are dark green fir trees, remote from man, sombre in their coloring and exhaling a sigh as the passing wind hurries through their longstretching boughs. That is where nature placed them, in isolation from man, barren of fruit, even the aroms of their wholesome breath wasted on the air. Friends, cut them down and turn them into fairy trees. Let them glow with bright colored tapers; let mimic snow wreathe their verdure ; let handsome presents hang from their toughs and a troop of merry children circle around the radiant vision. Transform the useless tree into a source of joy, a thing of beauty, of intense delight.

To effect this startling transformation draw a small coin from your pocket, or a bill with a modest numeral in the corner, and send it to THE EVENING WORLD. With thousands to aid you, a wizard hand will transport these trees from the unfruitfulness of their solitude to prolific fertility in the midst of laughing. happy children.

The ch ldren of the poor! The little ones whom San's Caus passes by because no one has stored his pack for them. Generous patrons of THE EVENING WORLD, let a good contribution for the Christmas trees of the little ones of want, the children of tears, and sadness, and toil, be the Mascot for your own Christman hearth.

You wi'l enjoy the genial warmth and gentle mirth of your own Christmas home if you know that elsewhere in the dingy, crowded slums little hourts are beating high with joy that you have brought them.

Also s gal!, which was beyond price.

What wonder that this Wall, is weak. The RCCE which was its corner-stone is gone-MATTERIAS ROCE, tailor, who is trying to take up a collection from owner. But he collects not, and Mr. Watt wears out his clothes and his p dionce with equal nonchalance. Giddy, stolid BEHRY, what a blue Benky you must be in a Waterbury watch!

RCYAL MATCH-MAKING.

Queen Victoria's visible posterity clusters as thickly around the dear old girl as flies about a bobtailed car in Summer. And now she has another match in her eye. Young HESSE is coming over to England. He is relation of the Guelphs, his papa is in delicate health, and there are several royal young females waiting around the British throne for a nupt al ring. VICTORIA is fond of machinations that have a ring to them, a nuptial ring. There will undoubtedly be a young Mrs. HESSE before long. We are not interested in Hessiaus ourselves, so we caunot feel a vital in erest in the dear old thing's success with Envrst.

A woman shooting her betrayer, and a father, deserted by his wife, killing his two little baby girls are among the harrowing features of the day's news. The tather was a small, consumptive letter-carrier, who took his little ones from their play to kill them. He also attem; ted his own life. Another example of the way in which criminal impulse seems to run in cyclus.

Count HEIBERT BISMARCE and Herr RICH-TER had a tilt in the Reichstag over Count WAIDERSEE and the Emperor. RICHTER wanted to know why Germany was governed by an Emperor who was governed by Count WALDERSEY, and HERDERT said it was none of his business. Parliamentary courtesy suffered a slight strain.

"Love Coins" Coming Pientifully from Children of Fortune.

Nell Nelson's Description of "The Evening World's " Christmas Trees.

The fund to provide Christman trees for the children of poverty grows apace. Not by mu-nificent checks from rich men, but by the lovefreighted contributions which cost sacrifices on the part of the givers, and which count so much to the credit side of human nature.

THE EVENTED WORLD is confident that the sums will continue to come ic, and that the total on Dec. 24 will bear out the claim that no poor child in New York or Brooklyn shall be neglected on Christmas Day. Let the dimeand quarters and half dollars come rolling in. THE EVENING WORLD Chrismas-Tree Fund

Belp Beautify the Christmas Trees.

Dear Little Children: This is Saturday, and you haven't any lessons to study. If you say not too tired to listen, I wish you would let me tell you something about the big Christmas parties that THE EVENING WORLD intends to give about Dec. 25. Only one invitation will be issued, but it will be printed in very black letters, each about as thick as your finger. It will appear at the head of this column, and include 10,000 boys and girls, whose parents are either too ill in a twinkling. or too poor to make their Christmas merry. invitation is to inform the children where they are to be held, Foveral large lecture halls or ment. ball rooms will be rented, which the art editors and bittersweet. In the middle of the floors giant Christmas trees will be planted, and all will be dressed exactly alike. Now shut your eyes and I'll tell you how, tapering, a glossy green, with sturdy branches. a spicy breath and short leaves, that grow like needles, and tickle when they happen to touch your face or hands. You have seen hundreds of just such trees in the markets and shops, only they may not have been quite as tall as THE EVENING WORLD trees, for the decorator will need a fourteen-foot step-ladder to pin the Star of the North above the top branch. But keep your eyes shut, dears, to see in fancy the twinkling lights flash from blue, green, crimson and yellow tayers; to see the dazzling colors stream from ginss balls, gilded foils, silvery bells, metallic scrolls, beads as bright as your own beautiful eyes and candy hearts as pink as your own sweet little faces; to see the sugar crystals on the green boughs glisten in the mellow gaslight like mimic snowfakes; to see the miles of milk-white popcorn strung among the branches like a necklace of precious pearis; to see the tarletan bags with their de licions sugar plums peeping through the gauzy merhes, envious to be eaten up, and to see the gay little cornucopies overflowing with nots and sweetments, canes, rods, broom-handles, pickets and mallets of cream candy striped with strawberry. Don't open yet, dear little Peekaboo, for that is only the dress; and a dress, to be a success, you know, must have trimming, and the bigger the dress the greater the amount of trimming reunired. Now, then: There are 10,000 little guests, and every ear must be gladdened, every mouth sweetened, every hand filled and every pocket crammed with goodies if their hearts are to be made gay and their Christmas merry.

See, in fancy, an orchard full of red and yellow appies; a grove of sweet oranges; a line of plum cakes, sugar cakes and seed cakes as farreaching as a rail of the Harlem L road; a little forest of nuts; a carload of candy; a great gross of dolis; a library of story books; a farm stocked with painted horses and tufted lambs and sheep; kennel full of dogs; a crate of toys; some puzzles and blocks for the baby guests, and a hamper of little shoer, mittens, scarfs, neckties, aprons, stockings, caps and hoods, and you will have guessed the make-up necessary for the succens of the Christmas parties that The Evenino

WonLD proposes to give.

Now, dear little curly head and sorrel top. blue eyes and fair hair; Dotty-dimple and Slim Jim, and tender hearts generally, I appeal to you for a love coin. I plead for the poor little hisdren of New York City, who are too tiny and too timid to plead for themselves. I want to help them tide the coming Christmas time and I want you to help me to reach them.

Now. I am not a harpy, nor the least bit avariions, and I don't want all your savings banks. nor even a fourth of their contents. A firth will be a munificence, and a titbe, enough. To be sure it will cost a sacrifice. You may have to deny your elf a longed-for toy, or forego ome promised pleasure. Maybe the subtraction of a love coin from your Christmas fond will lesson the beauty of sister's little bracelet, take the Justre from the pretty vase you had selected for your mamma and leave your big, sweet-tempored, warm-hearted paga without any token whatever.

Well, never mind if it does. Tell sister how sweet she is and how much prettier her slender wrist is than any jewel that was ever out; tel your mamma she is the dearest woman in the world, and that when you are big and rich you'll bu, her a real royal Worcester vase; put you arms about your papa's neck, press your face against his cheek. tell him you love him with a ove that knows neither measure nor limit; tell him, too, what you contemplate doing, and my word for it, dear, he will call you sweetheart. pat you on the head lovingly, and think, if he

But, happy little ones have you ever stopped in your merriment and joyful antic pation to think how many thousands of poor children there are in this great city of ours to whom Christmas brings no joyragged, hungry, neglected little people, with just as bright eyes, just as sensitive hearts and just de keen appetites as yours, to whom the great holiday brings no gift-burdened Santa Claus, no glittering Christmas tree, no wellfilled stocking, no tidings of great joy, no variation to the shivering cold, the hunger and the privations of everyday wretchedness?

You who have never known the pauce of hunger, the discomfort of ragged stockings, broken shoes, threadbare garments and insufficient bed-clothing cannot feel for the children of roverty, but you can sweeten your own loys and bring the sunshine for hundreds of unfortunate little boys and girls to bask in by the bestowal of a very small portion of your individual

It's very sweet, dear children, to practise a little self-robbery. It quickens the heart, speeds the pulse. makes the spirits feathery and light, give, wings to the feet, beauty to the face and zest to life.

Don't you believe it ?

Ah, I know you believe ! and I believe in you, too, and I want once more to ask you, the children of fortune, to help make a merry Christmas for the children of misfortune. Won't you do it for the love of

Cause of the Hand-Organ Unopposed Before the Aldermanic Lawyers.

Musicians' Unions Not Opposed to the Hand-Organ Men.

There is much hearty rejoicing among the organ-grinders to-day.
No voice was raised against the return of the hand-organs to the streets during the hearing before the Law Committee of the Board of Aldermen, and undoubtedly that Committee will report favorably on the repealing amendment offered by Alderman Morris, and on Tuesday next the Board will undo the wrong it unwit the poor" will be heard again on the streets. That was a queer collection of men which ar peared before the Law Committee—the maimed, rippled, blind and infirm- and the speakers took as many views of the question as there were tingly committed a mouth zero, and the " music

John Cavagnaro took the ground that the ordinance excluding the organ-grinders was a aw against the disabled, and a law against the poor people who could not patronize Wagner opera nor the expensive performances at the Casino and Wallack's.

Jimmy Oliver, of Cherry Hill, drew a pathetic picture from his experience as a dweller in a tenement-house district.

J. C. Carlisle, President of the New York Adult Blind Association, chosen to appear before the Committee at a meeting of the outdoor blind in Dr. Da Costa's church, made the most effective dress. He said it seemed to him that the blind were areye fore to the rich, and that by the orei and many of those b, reft of sight were left in hope-areye ore to the rich, and that by the erd aloes many of those bereft of sight were left in hopeless poverty.

Wathore Lynn renounced the rosition of pleaders taken by the other speakers and asygressively demanded the reperior the ordinance as un-Democratic, un-Femblician, un-American, and a disgracefully small business for a big city to engage in.

Inderick I. Farrell argued that a man listening to the strains of a hand-organ could not be brewing mischief nor guzzling drud.

Lawson N. Cable Road Fuller spoke feelingly in the interest of 250,000 children of the city who delighted in the music of the organ.

Even the lawyer engaged to appear for the Musical Benevotent Association asked that the ordinance be amended to that all muricians who are citizens or the Republic be pecinited to rily their vocation on the street if they desire, and John W. Beard, of Dooweth's Band and the Musical Mutual Protective Union, while he worled that body's opposition to imported contract labor street bands, had no word to say against the mor organ-grinders.

Nobody said that he or anybody else of his acquaintance was opposed to the organ-grinders, and the Committee must revort favorably to the poor fellows at next Thesday's meeting of the loand, and then the objectionable part of the ordinance will undoubtedly be repealed.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

Herbert Ward, Stanley's Companion. Herbert Ward, the companion of Stanley in his explorations in Africa, is the only white man connected with Stanley's African explorations who has ever returned alive from the "Dark Continent." Mr. Ward's articles running through eight numbers of the "Ledger" are of the most intensely interesting description, and cover five years of his adventures in Africa, and they will be illustrated by sketches made by Mr. Ward, and by the reproduction of photographs taken by him in Africa. These pictures will throw much light upon the manners and customs of the hitherto unknown cannibal tribes of Africa.

The Story of a Forsaken Inn, (A SERIAL STORY) By Anna Katharine Green. Life in British America, By Rev. E. R. Young.

Being the edventures and experiences of Rev. E. R. Young, the celebrated missionary, and his wife during their residence in the Polar region twelve hundred miles north of St. Paul, in which Dr. Young narrates how he tuned and taught the native wild Indians of the Northwest; how he equipped himself for and how he made his perilous sledging and hazardous cance trips when visiting all the Indian settlements within five hundred miles of his home. Honorable Henry W. Crady Contributes a series of six articles on the "Wonderful Development of the Industrial Pursuits of the New South." American Cookery, (A SERIES OF ARTICLES) By Miss Parloa. Giving the reasons why it is imperfect, and some ways by which it may be improved.

Nihilism in Russia, By Leo Hartmann, Nihilist. Lee Hartmann, a fugitive from Russian authorities, has been connected with the most daving feats of the Russian Wibilists.

Mr. Hartmann shows how the intelligent people of Russia are becoming Nibilists in consequence of the despetism of the form of government. A participant in plots to kill the Czar, such as the blowing up of the Winter Palace, he is able to give true information as to how this and other great schemes were accomplished. The situation in Russia is sufficient to increase the love of every true American for our form of government.
